YANKS FIGHT HARD, BUT FORGET, SAYS CORRESPONDENT FROM COBLENZ

Doughboy Rough Customer Only in Field—Candy for Kids—Anxiety for Relatives.

(Edwin L. Jones.)
(Cable to New York Times.)
Then, again, the doughboy is different from any other soldier on earth. On the battle field he is the roughest customer that the war brought to France; off the battle field he is the most human of all the soldiers.
In a hundred ways he shows this, but in none so much as in his devotion to children. In France the doughboy, when off duty, is always surrounded by a group of youngsters and here in Germany it is much the same, for children are the same world over and so is the doughboy.
There are no rules against soldiers fraternizing with children, and if there were it is a question how many more generals we would have to have to enforce it.
This fondness of the American soldiers for children impresses itself on all who see him. The French remark upon it along the Rhine and sometimes frown. That is because they do not understand the doughboy.
The polli, when he sees a German man, woman or child, thinks of ravaged France and four years of suffering. The doughboy, when he sees a German child, thinks of a little brother or sister, or son or daughter back home. He has already forgotten the suffering of the battle field.
Yesterday I was coming down the Rheinstrasse and I saw a doughboy and a German lad of 7 standing in front of one of the many story stores in the city. They entered the store and I waited until they came out, and the boy walked away with a bundle under his arm.
I asked the soldier about it. As he turned away I saw he had two wound stripes.
"Maybe it wasn't right and maybe it was," he said. "Maybe he is a boche, but he's a kid all the same, and I bought him a Christmas present." Then he laughed and said, "What do you think the little son of a gun wanted? A rifle?" As we walked down the street this doughboy told me he was wounded south of Soissons and again north of Verdun. If he did not want to keep remembering the German children who died at Christmas time, I wondered what academic rule maker had a right to make him.
We were in front of what once was a candy store. Nasty, but not much candy this Christmas. There is no chocolate and there is too much hunger. The window of this store was filled with poor imitations of candy, unpalatable and uninviting. I did not say anything about it, but this doughboy said: "You know, to me, one of the tragedies of this war is that these kids haven't any candy for Christmas. They give a damn if we did fight their fathers and lick them, I wish I could give them all a bag of candy such as they hand out at the church Christmas trees back home."
Then he speaks the doughboy, the best fellow in the world, and regardless of rules and regulations, issued by the generals, the memory of the German children of American occupation is going to be the memory of the doughboys, and because the memory of the Germans of the future going to be the memory of the children of today.

COMMITTEE WORKING ON PEACE-TIME POLICY

SECRETARY DANIELS WILL PRESENT PLANS.

Pre-Armistice Estimates Will Be Materially Reduced, Declares Padgett.

Washington, Dec. 27.—America's peace-time naval policy will be fixed by the present democratic congress, it became known today. The house naval affairs committee is speeding up so that the bill can be handed to the house for passage by Jan. 15. This would leave almost two months for passage by both houses.
Secretary of the Navy Daniels will appear before the committee early next week to wind up the proposals of the divisions of the navy and make final recommendations as to what the bill should contemplate. He has already indicated that the department wants a shipbuilding program that will put the American navy on a plane second in power to none.
The policy is outlined by the general board of the navy, which has submitted to the committee a recommendation that the bill provide for a six-year building program. The secretary's recommendation is for a three-year program. The board's proposal contemplates a much bigger building policy than the secretary's, and the committee will try to reconcile these divergent opinions.
The proposals as submitted to the committee before the armistice was signed called for an appropriation of $2,600,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920.
"This figure will be largely decreased," said Chairman Padgett, of the house committee today. He was confident that at least a fourth of the amount would be stricken out.
With this reduction, he said, the bill could still provide for the six-year shipbuilding program and also raise the standing strength of the navy from its present strength of 151,000 to 220,000, as has been requested.
The committee will commence framing the bill after hearing Secretary Daniels next week.

RESOLUTION CALLS FOR ENDURING WORLD PEACE

BRITAIN FAVORS LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Only Way America's Promise of Democracy Can Be Fulfilled.

Washington, Dec. 27.—A resolution requesting the world peace conference at Versailles to create at the earliest practicable moment a league of nations that will establish an enduring world peace was introduced in the house today by Representative Britten (Republican, of Illinois). Britten gave notice that he will ask for hearings by the foreign relations committee upon his resolution early in the new year.
"Unless a league of nations is established the entire world will immediately throw into the discard the contention that America entered the war to make the world safe for democracy," he said. "President Wilson's star will rise or fall with his ability to bring about an early acceptance of a world league for the prevention of future wars as a lasting proof that our thousands of deaths and our crippled heroes have not fought under a misconception or in vain. All America stands practically solid behind the president for an international league which will insure the free use of the sea to great and small nations alike, and which alone can prevent the threatened spread of bolshevism and anarchism."
Britten was of the opinion that the surrendered and interned German battleships should form the nucleus of a world navy under the direction of the league of nations. This navy should be added to from time to time and should be continuously maintained, by the signatories of the league, on a war basis, he said.

OFF THE WIRES

Thirty-five sailors on leave from warships in New York harbor, were robbed of their money at resorts to which they were enticed on Christmas night.
Formulation of a definite government policy relative to the further construction of ships and their cost in order to increase the American merchant marine to meet our needs after the war, was urged yesterday in the senate.
Opposition to a league of nations was expressed in the senate by Senator Smith, Democrat, of Georgia. Eight frame buildings, comprising the town of Dilworth, Texas, were destroyed by fire of undetermined origin, entailing a loss of $75,000. Floods in the Sulphur river, near the Arkansas-Louisiana line, caused a break in the sixteen-inch main supply natural gas to many Arkansas cities and towns.
Snow greeted the American troops in the occupied areas of Germany on Christmas morning.
Baron Nobuaki, head of the Japanese delegation to the peace conference, arrived at San Francisco from Japan.
A violent explosion occurred in the explosives storehouse of a mining company at St. Etienne, France. Four persons were injured and several houses destroyed.
Cyrus H. McCormick, president of the International Harvester company since its organization in 1902, has retired from that office and become chairman of the concern's board of directors.
The Belgian cabinet council, at a sitting Tuesday under the presidency of the king, adopted a scheme of electoral reform intended to establish universal suffrage for the next elections.
Twelve men were shot by court-martial orders, after an armed uprising by bolshevik elements at Omsk, on the night of Dec. 22, said a cablegram from the Omsk government.
The Munich Post prints a startling charge, that German war profiteers, unable otherwise to get their booty out of Germany, have resorted to the use of airplanes. According to the newspaper, several airplanes have taken securities of enormous value from Frankfurt to Switzerland.

PERSHING, BEHALF ARMY, GREET'S Y. M. C. A. HEAD

Paris, Dec. 27.—Gen. Pershing has sent the following message to E. C. Carter, secretary of the American expeditionary forces of the Y. M. C. A.: "With a deep feeling of gratitude for the enormous contribution which the Young Men's Christian association has made to the moral and physical welfare of the American army, all ranks join me in sending you Christmas greetings and cordial best wishes for the new year."

All speakers were members of the party member speaking. A Dublin newspaper, announcing the meetings, said that members of parliament and republican candidates, "except those in jail," would speak at the gatherings.

GERMANS PLAN TAXES

But Hurry of Government Arouses Anxiety.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Taxes designed to raise about eighty billion marks are planned by the council of the peoples' delegates, said an official report received today from Berlin, quoting a Berlin dispatch to the Sud Deutsche Zeitung. The dispatch said the new taxes would be levied on war profits and that a decree determinative of the tax would be published within a fortnight. In connection with the dispatch the Sud Deutsche Zeitung observes:
"However legitimate may appear the principle of the tax, one cannot but consider with some anxiety the hurry with which the government is acting. The allied powers will surely augment their demands when they are aware of our financial means and will lay hold of the sum in question. The result will be a diminution of our national wealth, bring no profit to the state and an increase in the taxes will fall on German citizens."

SAYS CZAR IS ALIVE.

Russian Reaching Warsaw Knows Hiding Place.

Warsaw, Dec. 27.—(P.)—"There is no doubt that the czar and his entire family are alive, I am positive of this," was the declaration made to the correspondent by "Mikhail de Tchikhatsev, a nephew of Gen. Skorodak, and who has just escaped from the Ukraine after recent trials to Petrograd, Dvinsk, Vitebsk and Novgorod."
"I cannot reveal where the czar is, because he does not wish it," he added. "He does not care to be bothered and he wants to be left alone. His whereabouts is known to an allied government. It is in a neutral country. Accounts of it I remember at Ekaterinburg were manufactured by Trotsky and Lenin for propaganda purposes."
Took Money and Lives.
"It took much money and time and also the lives of many officers to accomplish his escape. Among the officers killed was Count Tatischev, the czar's former personal military attaché, who was shot instead of the czar. Documents describing the czar's escape were in the hands of German Consul Koenig at Petrograd, who forwarded them to Berlin."
M. De Tchikhatsev said the allies should send an army of occupation into Russia to re-establish a stable government and business conditions. He said the cost of living in Russia was appalling, a pound of butter costing 120 rubles and a pair of trousers 1,000 rubles. Frequently there was no food obtainable at any price.
